

Forbes magazine selects Cosentino Group as one of the "50 Best Companies to Work For"

The chosen companies, of more than 1.000 employees, were subject to a demanding process which included a survey of at least 80 of their professionals who quantified and evaluated up to 34 different aspects.

The Spanish multinational currently employs a workforce of over 4.400, composed by a group of professionals with 75 different nationalities. Only last year, Cosentino created nearly 400 new direct jobs.

Cosentino Group, global Spanish company leader in the production and distribution of innovative surfaces for architecture and design, has been chosen in the first ranking about the "Best Companies to Work For" which has published the Spanish edition of Forbes magazine. A selection of the best 50 companies to work for, with more than one thousand employees, and with base or presence in Spain. The study is based on the opinions of more than 8.000 employees of the biggest companies of all industries in Spain.

The prestigious publication has worked with the support of the market studies and public surveys company Sigma Dos, who has been in charge of doing the survey, for this first edition of the ranking. For the final creation of the list, the participating companies were subject to a demanding process which included a survey of at least 80 of their professionals who quantified and evaluated up to 34 aspects. This way, the companies have not only done a transparency effort, but also they have proven to be willing to listen to the verdict of their workforce, and take notice of their satisfaction index.

Cosentino Group is one of the leading Andalusian and Spanish companies generating quality employment. The multinational currently employs a workforce of over 4.400, composed by a group of professionals with 75 different nationalities. Only last year, Cosentino created nearly 400 new direct jobs.

This special number of the magazine was presented at an exclusive cocktail celebrated last Thursday at the Hotel Santo Mauro in Madrid. At the event were present Alonso Fernández Bombin, Talent Management Director and Olga Sánchez, Talent Development Specialist for Cosentino Group. The event was hosted by Andrés Rodríguez, president and editor of Forbes Spain, together with Gerardo Iracheta, CEO of Sigma Dos.
